A sense of place can transport us. Create the other-worldly magic of winter scenes with these helpful sources. The Magpie (oil on canvas, 35x51) by Claude Monet, 1868 – 1869 I may be a beach person at heart, but there is something other-worldly about quintessential winter landscapes. I'm talking fluffy snow, slightly overcast skies, fresh animal tracks, and icicles adorning tree branches.

MEDITATION ART - silence is so creative!

Guided imagery and Visualization The following is excerpted from "Art Therapy for Groups" by Marian Liebmann. 1. Suitability. People need to be able to relax in order to 'get into' imaginative journeys, so if this is a major problem, the method is not suitable for your group—or some practice with relaxation techniques is needed first.
