Road Trip Journal - Looking Through the Rearview Mirror

A rear-view mirror is a flat mirror in automobiles and other vehicles, designed to allow the driver to see rearward through the vehicle's rear window. In cars, the rear-view mirror is usually affixed to the top of the windshield on a double-swivel mount allowing it to be adjusted to suit the height and viewing angle of any driver and to swing

Many business owners and leaders that I meet are busy running their businesses through the rear-view mirror. What do I mean by that? Well for starters, everything is historical . . . a look back, if you will. Owners that pour over the information in P&L's, but don't operate using a cash flow budget, are a good example.

The earliest recorded use of any device that resembles a rear view mirror was in 1911 in the inaugural race of the Indianapolis 500, by Ray Harroun in his Marmon racecar. He mounted a mirror on one of the struts so that he could see behind him. This wasn't as much a safety feature as it was to lighten the load.
